Elegant blue doors welcome visitors toward an inviting, curving staircase leading up to a stained glass window. The winding stairs foreshadow the absence of square angles within the home. The intersecting carpet and patterns along the wall in the foyer are tasteful — the owners and decorator decided “just a little” was just enough.

The homeowners’ two years of living by the ocean in beautiful New Zealand has clearly inspired the decor and furnishings. Deep blue accents are featured around the home, complimenting the classic wood flooring and various odes to life by the sea. Beautiful paintings by various family members are docked along the walls, many portraying ships you could watch floating past any seavall.
